Part 16 of THE ROTARY GAME

Who Is This Rotarian?

C. This Rotarian was born in Charleston, South Carolina, and grew up mostly in a very small town in western North Carolina, and over time he lived in five southern states. When he was younger he was very active in Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts, particularly enjoying camping and hiking in the mountains of western North Carolina, spending great amounts of time at Camp Daniel Boone in North Carolina and Camp Old Indian in South Carolina. He earned his undergraduate degree from the University of Alabama, a masters from Georgia State and did a management residency in Jacksonville, Florida. His first job out of graduate school was in Ocala, Florida, and lived there with his new wife for 12 years before moving to Anniston to take a job here. His family is a divided family -- between Alabama and Vanderbilt. He and his son are UA graduates and his wife and other son are Vanderbilt graduates. He was a huge athletics fan growing up; he played basketball in high school and participated in just about every intramural sport in college, from basketball and football to bowling and horseshoes. But he also happens to be accident prone which resulted in his breaking his nose in basketball, tearing a hamstring playing softball, tearing the cartilage in his knees playing volleyball, suffering a concussion getting on a ski lift, and one of the worst was having an excruciatingly painful run-in with a Portuguese Man-O-War while swimming in the Atlantic that required an immediate hospital visit. After that vacation upon returning to Jacksonville, Florida, he became considered a teaching subject for medical students so that they could see what it looks like to get stung by a Man-O-War, showing about a half dozen tentacle marks down his back. But most recently, at his son's wedding he was dancing with the bride for the first time and re-tore his ham string doing a slow dance. Fortunately that night they were actually serving pain medicine at the reception, although it is generally called tequila. This Rotarian serves on a few different local boards, including the little known Jimmy Rosen Foundation that was established by one of the merchants in town about 10 years ago and which annually gives out funds to charities. He is also active in local religious life, as he serves as president of his congregation. Along those lines, as far as he knows, he is the only person in Calhoun County who can plan an ancient musical instrument sometimes used in worship services. In fact it was the instrument that Joshua and his men used to bring down the walls of Jericho. For fun these days he likes to go boating and water skiing. One of his sons is currently in medical school and creates iPhone and iPad apps on the side. When the new iPad2 came out, one of his applications was featured as one of the top 50 among the many thousands out there. The younger son will also be starting med school this summer and works in an Apple store.
