

Part 11 of
THE ROTARY GAME
Who Is This Rotarian?

A. This Rotarian started singing in a church choir in the fourth grade and still sings a church choir today. He grew up in Dean Martin's hometown in Ohio and knew members of the family. On October 5, 1960, he was at Game 1 of the World Series where the Pirates played the Yankees. He worked his way through higher education delivering draft Budweiser in Myrtle Beach. One of his customers was a place where the house band was a then-unknown group named ... Alabama. During his military service he jumped out of a perfectly good airplane five times. He married the first love of his life 17 years after meeting her. He worked for the IRS in Washington, D.C. for five years. He has been in private business for about 26 years.

B. This Rotarian is the president of the company his father started after returning from World War II. Their company has had to adapt to almost constant changes in technology over the years, beginning with selling radios for cars and homes, to consumer televisions later, to being a pioneer in 2-way communications, to beeper service, to one of the biggest pieces of their business today which involves installing and servicing major outdoor warning systems all over the world, ranging from storm warning sirens to other warning systems on military bases. Last year alone that work has taken his Anniston-based company to military bases in Korea, Germany, Japan and Iraq. Personally, he enjoys snow skiing, golf, fly fishing, and combining two of his other hobbies, riding his motorcycle and photography along his rides. This fall he took a 14-day motorcycle ride through 16 states, going as far as Wyoming. He is married and has four children. He and his wife host an event at their home each December to collect toys for a Jacksonville charity that distributes them to children at Christmas. He was proposed for membership in Rotary by his dentist, who is a member of our club.

C. This Rotarian spent the first ten years of his life residing in a large Calhoun County community that was once the family farm of a now-deceased member of this Rotary Club. He is a 1986 graduate of Anniston High School, and while a student, was a computer science student of the late Jeanne Coleman. Four years ago, Jeanne's husband and fellow Rotarian Tom Coleman gave this Rotarian a treasured antique representing this Rotarian's current industry and company. This Rotarian began and finished his college journey at the University of Alabama at Birmingham with a finance degree, with many collegiate detours along the way and very much to this parents' financial dismay. One of this Rotarian's current bosses is a fellow Rotarian who doesn't eat spaghetti, but whose name nearly rhymes with this Italian dish. His other boss is a former fellow Rotarian and the son of one of this club's founders.
